

Address: 88 Hebron Road

Contemporary Building Name: 88 Hebron Road

Historic Building Name: T. Daley House

Present Use: Residential

Historic Use: Residential

Architectural style: Colonial

Date constructed: 1760-1800 (Baber), 1745 (Assessor)

Description: In the front elevation the central doorway is flanked by fluted pilasters which support an entablature. The four-panel door is under a four-light transom. There are two 6-over-6 windows on each side. A small, tall central brick chimney rises from the ridge line. A bow window on the west is balanced by a small wing on the east, with a long ell extending to the rear.

Significance: The house is a good example of a one-story Colonial structure which continues to exhibit the five-bay central-doorway central-chimney configuration associated with the building type. The many alterations and additions have not diminished the original concept. The 1869 atlas identifies the house with T. Daley's name.
